Siam Cement (SCC TB)

The Beginning Of a New Wave; BUY

- Maintain BUY and SOP-based THB400 TP, 25% upside and c.5% yield. Among Siam Cement's three major businesses, its subsidiary company's packaging business appears to be the strongest, in terms of improvements in the business operations from 4Q22's trough levels, mainly due to stronger sales volumes. The two other businesses - cement & building materials and petrochemicals - should also gradually come out of the doldrums.
- · Finding the bottom. In 4Q22, the subsidiary's packaging business was the most disappointing among SCC's major businesses, with significantly lower-than-expected earnings in 4Q22, as the business unit was hit hard by slower sales volume in the integrated packaging segment and weaker GPM in the fibrous segment. Note that all of its packaging products saw FY22's lowest sales volumes in 4Q22, especially the packaging paper segment, which was impacted by sluggish demand in China and ASEAN countries.
- Time for a recovery. In 1Q23, all of SCC's major businesses simultaneously improved from their trough levels. The petrochemicals business in 1Q23 was supported by more stable levels of product spreads for HDPE-Naphtha and Polypropylene-Naphtha - at an average of >USD400/ton - and the cement & building materials business improved on increased construction and renovation activity in Thailand, in spite of a mix of business trends in other ASEAN countries. The packaging business has shown signs of improvements in sales volumes and enhancements in production cost management.
- Solid outlook for packaging. The challenging situation for the packaging business has eased YTD, as sales volumes of packaging paper (43% of FY22 sales revenue) grew significantly. Note that 2M23 numbers have already reached the level recorded during entire 4Q22 (0.87m tons), and the high-cost inventory stocked up during the spike in energy costs has been depleted. Therefore, double-digit sales growth and the resumption of EBITDA margins (>13%) are the leading indicators for this year's packaging business. We expect this business to grow more prominently in 2H23 due to the demand from China and seasonally stronger 3Q.
- Maintain FY23 recovery outlook. After the plunge in FY22 earnings, especially in 4Q22 - due to lower sales volumes and weak cost management in all three major businesses - we keep our view that SCC's earnings will improve in FY23, particularly in 2H23. This is due to China's full reopening - which should bode well for both the petrochemicals and packaging businesses - and also new government policies, post elections, which support higher local demand for cement and building materials.
