- Keep BUY, new FY23F TP of THB5.30 from THB5, 12% upside. The Erawan Group posted a 4Q22 net profit turnaround – way above our and Street’s forecasts due to a robust hotel wing performance post Thailand’s full re-opening in early Oct 2022. We still expect a promising 1Q23 net profit outlook – driven by the high tourism season and return of Chinese visitors. We think ERW may book positive core earnings for the full year.
- 4Q22 results turnaround. The group had a 4Q22 core profit of THB240m vs core losses of THB347m and THB12m in 4Q21 and 3Q22 – its first positive earnings since 1Q20 and the highest in 18 quarters – beating even 2019’s levels. This was materially above our and Street’s forecasts of THB111m and THB141m. The positive surprise was due to higher-than-expected hotel revenues and GPMs, as well as tax benefits. Consequently, ERW delivered smaller core losses of THB237m in 2022 vs 2021’s THB2.02bn loss. Note: It will pay no dividends for FY22.
- Impressive hotel recovery. 4Q22 hotel operations strongly benefited from a demand surge for accommodations among international visitors post Thailand’s re-opening, which broke 4Q19 numbers. The non-budget hotel portfolio posted occupancy rates (ORs) of 82% (4Q19: 78%, 4Q21: 30%, 3Q22: 67%) with average room rates (ARR) and revenue/available room (RevPar) of above 4Q19 levels by 14% and 20%. These were driven by performance hikes in the mid-scale and economy segments – those of ERW’s luxury properties continued to be strong. Economies-of-scale operations and a higher mix of foreign guests enhanced GPMs and lowered the opex-to-sales ratio, both YoY and QoQ.
- Seeking further RevPar hikes from Chinese guests. We believe ERW’s existing source markets – ie Russia, Europe, and South-East Asia – will continue to drive 1Q23’s net profit growth YoY and QoQ during the high travel season. The windfall from China’s sudden lifting of travel restrictions from 8 Jan onwards could also partially help strengthen 1Q23F RevPar – ORs for ERW’s non-budget hotels may approach 90% – and allow its Thailand hotels’ operations to beat 1Q19’s numbers. We expect the return of Chinese guests to ramp up significantly in 2Q23, which can support earnings during the 2Q low-travel period. Also, the full-year runs of 7 Hop Inn budget hotels in Thailand and two properties in the Philippines (a combined 1,045 rooms) may be another potential growth support.
- Profit turnaround in 2023. To reflect the splendid 4Q22 results, we initially revised up earnings by 13% in 2023 and 5-7% over 2024-2025, which leads to a positive full-year core earnings of THB366m in 2023 and strong 73% growth to THB632m in 2024. This would allow ERW to achieve 2019’s levels (see our key operational assumptions in Figure 2).
- Valuation. We derive an ESG score of 3.0 and apply a 6% discount to our DCF-derived intrinsic value to arrive at our new FY23F THB5.30 TP. We are still positive on ERW as a proxy to local hotel operators, and catalysts from its strong performance outlook and Thailand’s tourism rebound.
