Overall ESG Score: 2.70 (out of 4)

E: MODERATE

DCC operates continuously for the transfer of residual heat from its production process in order to recycle as well as reduce energy consumption and waste. Water management is done in a closed system, whereby water from the production process is treated and reused so as not to affect the communities surrounding its factories while reducing water usage as well.

S: GOOD

DCC provides all employees with good and safe working conditions at its factories, branches and head office. Employees also have access to knowledge development programmes, thereby allowing them the opportunity to advance their careers and improve their quality of life. The company has since extended these programmes to its business partners and all stakeholders for social sustainability.

G: GOOD

guidelines DCC has established for corporate governance, which are: i) rights of shareholders, ii) equitable treatment of shareholders, iii) role of stakeholders, iv) disclosure and transparency, as well as v) responsibilities of the board of directors and committees.

• Stay NEUTRAL and DCF-based THB2.71 TP, 1% downside and >5% yield. Dynasty Ceramic now has to confront the industry-wide risk factor, ie the surge in production fuel costs. Hence, GPMs have been hit hard recently. For the upcoming quarters, the company has find remedies to troubleshoot these hardships. We expect such workarounds to become effective from next year onwards while the 4Q22 performance will be threatened by risk factors similar to 3Q22's. Yet, despite lacking strong growth prospects, dividend yields remain attractive.

- Outstanding 3Q22 risk factors. 3Q22 saw poor earnings. DCC was hit hard by a: i) 8%YoY decline in sales volumes caused by lower purchasing power (especially among the low-to-mid income markets that represent 73% of 3Q22's sale revenue), ii) sharp increase (+45% YoY) in natural gas costs used in the production process, and iii) +11% YoY rise in average product prices being unable to fully offset the impact of higher production costs. We expect these similar factors to pressure 4Q22 GPM, as 3Q22 GPM has already dropped to 41% from >43% normally. This was the major factor for 3Q22 net profit declining 12%YoY.
- These risks to continue in 4Q22. As seen in Figure 2, low-to-mid-end products segments still dominate DCC's overall sales volumes (73% for both 3Q22 and 9M22) despite the company attempting to boost the sales of high-end products, eg extra-large ceramic tiles, porcelain wall tiles, etc, for several years now. Therefore, sales volumes are still heavily reliant on low-to-mid-end markets that have been impacted by the purchasing power factor. Meanwhile, the ASP revisions mean the higher production costs have been forcibly passed on to the general market instead of shifting the products portfolio towards the high-end segment. Therefore, we expect DCC's situation in 4Q22 to be similar to 3Q22's, ie the weak purchasing power among the low-end market and high production cost levels will retain their major roles in influencing its low GPMs and YoY slower sales volumes. All in, we believe 4Q22 should be another quarter that shows a YoY decline in net profit.
- Unpromising growth. Based on 9M22 sales volumes declining 13% YoY, we believe DCC cannot escape from the situation of slower sales volumes - pressured by softer purchasing power in its major markets. The company's sales revenues will rely on the revision of ASPs to mitigate the inflated fuel costs. Therefore, we maintain our FY22 GPMs of 41.8%. We also see earnings declining 6% YoY to THB1.6bn.
- Our ESG score for DCC remains at 2.7, which was previously discounted due to its corporate governance score. From this, we derive an initial DCF-based intrinsic value of THB3.08 and apply a 12% ESG discount to arrive at our THB2.71 TP. Maintain NEUTRAL.
