Bangkok Chain Hospital (BCHTB)

KTAs From Analyst Briefing; Maintain BUY

- Still BUY, new THB21 TP (DCF) from THB22, 27% upside, c.2% yield. Bangkok Chain Hospital may see positive sentiments from potential easing of overhang issues from the absence of Kuwaiti patients and the Social Security (SS) agency's high-cost care payments to hospitals. There may be potential downside to its 4Q24F earnings, but we expect the improving business outlook to drive its core profit growth to 17% in 2025 (2024: 6%).
- 3Q24 results recap. BCH posted 3Q24 net profit of THB453m (+3% YoY, +64% QoQ). The YoY growth was driven by local outpatients (ie rising demand in specialised centres) and social security patients, while the strong QoQ expansion was due to seasonality. Inpatient revenue (29% mix) fell 15% YoY mainly due to the absence of Kuwaiti patients, but improved 14% QoQ on the rising patient volume from other Middle East countries and Thailand's neighbours. 3Q24 EBITDA margin of 27% was slightly down 0.4ppt YoY and strongly increased 5.1ppts QoQ on well-managed opex. Its 9M24 net profit totalled THB1.05bn (+7% YoY).
- Kuwait's patients update. Management said the Kuwait government has not announced its approved hospital list in Thailand for citizens to obtain guarantee of payment for medical treatments. However, BCH is confident of being included in the list due to its specialisation in fully-integrated diabetes treatment, and it had recently attained the Kuwait government's inquiries on medical fees schedule. The company expects Kuwaiti patients to return from early 2025 onwards.
- SS scheme's high-cost care payments guaranteed. The SS Office came up with a resolution to stabilise its monthly payments for complex treatments (relative weight or RW ≥2) provided to SS members in Jan-Dec 2025 at THB12,000/RW as requested by the private hospitals. A contract may be signed by end-2024 and the matter would strongly benefit BCH's 2025F earnings as the private hospital operator with the largest volume of registered SS members. However, according to management, there may be a reduction in the base payment rate for Aug-Dec 2024, which could be a potential downside to BCH's 4Q24F earnings.
- A stronger outlook in 2025. We also expect BCH's business outlook to improve next year, based on; i) Well-performed cash and insurance patients, ii) its Kasemrad International Hospitals in Aranyaprathet and Vientiane (opened in 2020 and 2021) may deliver positive bottomlines, and iii) expansions, ie full-year operations of the profitable radiation oncology clinic and a hospital upgrade in Pathum Thani in 1Q25. We now expect a revenue growth of 3% in 2024 before ramping up to 10% in 2025.
- Forecast and valuation. We revise down BCH's core profit by 2-4% for 2024-2025, and 10% in 2026 by fine-tuning our revenue, GPM, and opex-to-sales ratio assumptions. We expect a core profit expansion of 6% YoY to THB1.49bn this year, before ramping up to 17% (THB1.74bn) in 2025. Our new TP includes a 2% ESG discount. BCH is trading at an undemanding 24x FY25F P/E (c.-1SD to its 10-year historical trading mean).
