

Central Plaza Hotel (CENTEL TB)

Just On Sentimental Rallies; Keep SELL

- SELL with new THB16.00 TP from THB13.40, 34% downside. COVID-19's impact on Central Plaza Hotel looks smaller than its balance sheet is healthier than local peers. Its food business may recover faster than its hotels, but the latter may still drag 2Q20F-3Q20F results in red ink. It may be too soon to expect a quick industry and earnings rebound.
- CENTEL looks set to reopen its hotels in June-July, but focusing on the local market (c.20% of total guests). We think a handful of upcountry resorts (mainly in Pattaya and Hua Hin) may ramp up occupancy rates to 50% (weekends only), while the rest could stay at c.20-30%. It may not be easy for a quick foreign guests rebound due to COVID-19. The foreign visitors ban also continues in June, with unlocking may be selectively done based on nationality. Using c.-95% YoY revenue/available room (RevPAR) for April-May, the biggest losses may be in 2Q20 and 3Q20. It may still be in the red on weak travel demand amid social distancing measures in place.
- CENTEL's material diversification in the quick-service restaurant business may limit the scale of impact to earnings more than another two Thai hoteliers under our coverage. Its delivery sales mix rose marginally to 35% vs 33% during pre-COVID-19 period. It may be unable to offset the store lockdown effect, which halved SSSG and TSSG in April and will likely continue in early May. Mid-May restaurant re-openings should recover its food performance gradually. This is amid challenges to topline, ie social distancing measures halving dine-in capacity and the after-effects of weak consumption. Outlets' rental fee discounts may be a benefit to cost controls. We are more optimistic on the food unit's earnings outlook vs hotels, as it may gradually turn profitable from 3Q20 onwards.
- We slash FY20F earnings further to a net loss of THB749m from THB1.03bn profit and cut FY21-22F core profits by 37% and 4% to reflect the pandemic's impact. FY20F revenue may fall 34% on a smaller contribution of 24% from hotels (2019: 41%). We conservatively assume 2020 RevPAR and SSSG of -50% and -20% YoY. Pressures on sales and fixed costs should still affect GPM and the opex-to-sales ratio during a recovery this year and the next. There are no dividend payments over FY19-20F, as it lowers its financial needs and interest expenses.
- Our FY20 DCF-derived TP improves to THB16.00 on lower 2020-2021 capex. Its healthy balance sheet (0.6x net D/E in 1Q20) is far below its 2x covenant and much stronger than local peers. CENTEL remains conservative: Extending investments to preserve liquidity and with no material near-term M&A. The share price rallied 68% in two months, which we think was on market expectations over hotel re-openings and the Government's tourism booster measures post-COVID-19. 2Q-3Q earnings may stay poor it may take two years to return pre-pandemic levels.
