marginally, as fear of infection has decreased and lockdown measures have been relaxed. That said, we expect revenue intensity of premium healthcare operators to decline, as they shift focus to competitive pricing to maintain the utilisation rate since the medical tourism slowdown. We remain upbeat on the small-cap hospitals which should benefit from an improved Social Security Office (SSO) payment scheme, but sector valuations are stretched.

• Now NEUTRAL on sector. Outpatient (OPD) traffic has risen only

Healthcare Facilities & Services

The Best Things Come In Small Packages

- Lesser impact on small-cap players. The drop in medical tourism in 1H20 will dampen the growth of Thailand's healthcare industry. However, we believe the outlook of mid- and low-tier hospitals (Chularat Hospital (CHG) and Bangkok Chain Hospital (BCH)) - which book smaller revenue contributions from international patients, and see strong revenue from the government healthcare scheme (GHS) - will remain solid. This is mainly due to the recent improvement in SSO payment policies, and the utilisation rate ramp-up of new hospitals. While premium hospital groups like Bumrungrad Hospital (BH) and Bangkok Dusit Medical Services (BDMS) should record softer margins, as they focus more on discounted pricing to draw more local patients to offset the shortfall in medical tourists, we expect to see a minor shift in proportion to GHS patients. A drop in consumer purchasing power should also benefit small-cap hospitals.
- Slow recovery of medical tourism. While are positive signs in the pentup demand from existing fly-in patients, the resumption of international flights should not lead to a significant recovery in medical tourism. This is largely because of the unclear alternative quarantine policy. There is positive feedback from talks between private healthcare providers and the Government, but we believe new quarantine measures will need more time to roll out. Although medical tourism will recover gradually, this may take at least two years before patient volume reaches pre-pandemic levels.
- Pre-opening projects will need more time to turn a profit. New hospital projects that will be, or have just been, launched by most of the operators (BH's Bangkrajao Vitallife, BDMS' Movenpick Wellness Resort and BCH's KIH Aranyaprathet) are more or less focused on medical tourism. The prolonged international travel restrictions could keep these projects in the red, and drag down their operators' bottomlines this year. We note that new hospitals launched by CHG (CHG 304 International Hospital and Ruampat Chachoengsao Hospital) should see only a minimal impact (vs other projects from peers), as these facilities focus more on local patients.
- Cooling down expansion. Public hospitals remain overcrowded from a facilities shortage, but utilisation rates (bed occupancy and outpatients) of private hospitals still have room to grow, largely on cumulative investments made to ramp up capacity in the past few years. However, we expect operators to tone down expansion (for greenfield and brownfield projects), and shift their focus to organic growth (improve utilisation rates via referrals, cost optimisation through cost-sharing) in the short term.
- · Despite the limited impact from the shortfall in medical tourism, smallcap hospitals' valuations still look attractive vs their big-cap peers. We prefer CHG and BCH, which should see double-digit net profit growth in 2020-2021. Both are still trading at discounts to the industry and their historical averages. Downside risks: prolonged travel restrictions, and a second wave of COVID-19 infections. Upside risks: alternative state quarantine measures being approved by the Thai Government.
