Siam Cement (SCC TB)

Reaching a High In 3Q20; Reiterate BUY

- Reiterate BUY, unchanged DCF-based TP of THB440.00 implies 37% upside, with 4% FY20F dividend yield. Siam Cement's numbers are likely to improve from a bottom in FY19, as its petrochemical business having already started to recover from the doldrums since 2Q20 is expected to record a robust improvement in 3Q20.
- Petrochemical unit's recovery presents a meaningful boost to 3Q20 prospects. After charting a robust rebound in earnings in 2Q20, growth for this metric should continue in 3Q20. We expect 3Q20 net profit at THB10.8bn (+75% YoY, +16% QoQ) mainly driven by earnings growth from the petrochemical business. This should be supported by both stronger polyolefins sales volumes and wider petrochemical spreads. Beside the inventory gain, the petrochemical arm should be the group's best performer, as 3Q20 sales volumes remained at a high of 470,000 tonnes, driven by demand stemming from the strong recovery of the auto & auto parts industry, and consistent sales orders from some specific industries benefitting from the pandemic. Also, the HDPE-naphtha spread improved over three straight quarters to an average of USD523.00/tonne as of 3Q20, while the polypropylene-naphtha spread was at a solid USD578.00/tonne, in spite of the 45% QoQ spike in the naphtha price.
- Other core businesses to support 3Q20 prospects. For its cement and building materials businesses, sales volumes in 3Q20 remain pressured by weak demand from commercial and residential projects (especially high-rise condominiums). However, the cost optimisation strategy consistently implemented by the group should help mitigate these segments' revenue shortfall. Meanwhile, its packaging business may not book earnings that outshine that of other core segments. We believe the demand for packaging paper in 3Q20 will not be as robust as the third quarter of previous years, due to the decrease in stockpiling activities required for this year's year-end festive season.
- 4Q20 earnings to level down. Despite our expectation of continuing improvements in petrochemical spreads, a scheduled 45-day shutdown of the Map Ta Phut olefin cracker for maintenance purposes in 4Q20 will lead to a shortfall in production volume amounting to 120-130K tonnes. This may imply that 4Q20 earnings will decline from the high in 3Q20. For Siam Cement's other two businesses cement & construction materials and packaging we do not expect to see any strong catalyst in 4Q20.
- Management's commitment. Both the petrochemical and packaging businesses are positioned as long-term growth drivers. This is based on the 70% capacity expansion in petrochemical business within FY23 and packaging business's revenue doubling within FY24 while online platform and solution-based sale will enhance construction material business's profitability.
