- Keep TRADING BUY with new TP of THB TP40.00 from THB 42.50, 23% upside. Sequential economic measures and compensation provided during network outage should continue to pressure the prepaid segment in 1Q21 – outlook needs more time to gain momentum. Still laggard valuation with decent dividend exposure should provide short-term trading opportunity.
- FY20 missed. FY20 core profit fell to THB 5.6bn (-9.3% YoY), slightly below our estimate (4Q20: -32.3% QoQ, -13.5% YoY), largely dampened by ongoing sluggish data monetisation, higher network opex and one-off items in the recent quarter. Mobile service revenue (MSR) dropped slightly to 14bn (-5.6% YoY) despite the surge in data consumption (FY20 volume of usage (VoU): +65% YoY) mostly due to the absence of the migrant and tourism-related segment (-5.5% of revenue ex. IC) and soft spending sentiment. 4Q20 handset sales surged to THB2.6bn (+112% QoQ, FY20: -2.6%) with deepen negative margin due to the aggressive subsidies to maintain its subs base. Total subs rose slightly to 18.8m (prepaid: +0.9% QoQ, postpaid: +1% QoQ) despite the migrant & tourism-related segment that yet to recover, thanks to its proactive approach towards the local market. ARPU declined slightly (prepaid: -0.8% QoQ, postpaid: -2.3% QoQ) driven by lower interconnection revenue, the risen of price sensitivity and the reactivation of its discount pricing to deal with intense competition.
- Strengthening network through low-bandwidth. Despite the deployment of 700MHz and 900MHz network, set to roll-out this year, should see margin compression kick in, we believe its network quality and competitive market position would strengthen in the longer term. While the re-farming the 3.5GHz (C-band) remains pending, at least until the new National Broadcasting and Telecommunications Commission (NBTC) board has been appointed, Total Access Communication's potential partnership on the dynamic spectrum sharing with TOT should not materialise so soon.
- Market position remains challenged. The recent network outage and being relatively laggard in terms of network quality and comprehensive services (ie fixed broadband, contents and 5G) should remain key challenges for DTAC's competitive position in the market. While we expect the company to hinge on discount pricing and subsidies campaign to maintain its subs based, we do not expect a swift change in terms of market share momentum in the near term. However, margin compression is likely to accelerate gradually thanks to increasing fully-depreciated assets from the previous investment cycle. Our core service revenue has been trimmed down slightly (from flat to c.-4%) after lowering ARPU due to the delay of economic recovery post COVID-19 resurgence.
- Decent yield with laggard valuation. DTAC maintained its high dividend payout rate (98.3%) – FY20 DPS was THB2.12 (c. 6.5% yield). While we remain cautious over its outlook, the resumption of economy activities in 2H20, relatively laggard valuation compared to peers (FY21F EV/EBITDA at 4.7x) and handsome yield should provide short-term trading opportunity.
- Key risks. Regulatory uncertainties over spectrum re-farming, rising price competition and the potential additional economic measures imposed by the Government.
